I grew up in southern California just out side of L.A. and over the years I personaly watched the smog and polution change and progressivly decrease over the years. I witnessed energy efficient house hold appyences come on line and how well that worked for my home state threw the 1980's and 1990's. I would hope that the [illegible] could in many ways learn from its lessons and some day put into practice more energy efficiency standards for the benefits of our great state and its people, mostly for its children who are our future. Benefit its thriving businesses and growing population.

Sincerly,
