Caller is opposed to the proposed rate increase because of the already existing high rates. With the continued increase in his utility bills he is finding it more difficult to manage his budget on a fixed income. Other utilities offer him the option of choosing his provider and he feels that electric service should enable him to make the same choice. Currently he does not have the option of going elsewhere for his service and is forced to spend his money with a utility that is not competitive in its' rates.
