I would like to encourage you to establish a reset date of October- for Trico's net metering program. This allow consumers with solar installations to use any excess energy that their system produces in the lower usage months. For example, if the reset date is October, energy you produce in November and December of 2010 can then be used in July and August of 2011 when we need it. Trico's proposed reset date is highly advantageous to them, but not us consumers. Thank you for your careful consideration of this.

Please establish a reset date of October for TriCo's net metering program. This will maximize our ability to use the excess energy that our systems produce in the lower usage months of November and December against the higher usage summer months.

DOCKET NUMBER E-01461A-09-0450**

REFERENCE: Trico Electric Cooperative, Inc.

It has come to our attention that TRICO, for their net metering program, has requested an annual reset date of March or April. This time frame, in clearly favoring TRICO at the expense of those of us who generate solar power, is unreasonable and discriminatory.

When we installed pv panels at our home, we were told that with net metering, all excess power we generate goes to TRICO They then sell it to others and roll credit for those watts over to future months when we may draw more from TRICO than we send them.

Clearly, to be most fair, a full year's electricity generation and usage should be included. The reset date should enable us to utilize the credit from the low usage fall and winter months, to apply as needed to the higher usage summer months. We therefore request that TRICO's reset date be set for October or November.
