Kingman needs more businesses which are 'clean' industries that will employ people over a long term. This new business will not hurt the landscape, and will occupy an area where few live, generally speaking. Of course, appropriate oversight is due to be sure environmental regulations are maintained.

Small businesses are all well and good, and should be encouraged, but they tend to fold within 2 years and employ too few for too short a time. It is beneficial to our county's economy to have a few larger employers. It is also important to be sure that the employees have citizenship/residency, and are treated right with proper safety precautions and employee benefits. Also the company will contribute to our county's tax base.

Mohave county is ideal for such an industry, esp one that will contribute rather than detract. Nobody wants 'heavy industry' with the pollution concerns. Our county offers very few attractions to any type of business.

I think we ought to whole heartedly endorse this one. Those opposed perhaps should do their homework better. HVS has stated it has plans and is negotiating with the city of Kingman to purchase reclaimed wastewater from the city's Hilltop Wastewater Treatment Plant. ...and the city has indicated it will work to make this happen.
