Our direct provider is Trico. I believe if SWTC - Trico funded only electric transmission and stayed out of welfare business, a rate increase would not be needed.

SWTC should be required to eliminate all social programs they are now funding. ie sending food home with school children for weekends. There are plenty agencies and volunteer groups who's purpose is social welfare.

Keeping rates low is a better benefit to more low income families than providing food for a few families. This should also include Thanksgiving and Christmas food and gifts. It would not stop SWTC employees from funding any program they wish to pay for with own funds and time. The few programmes that I personally know about, Trico not only pay for food, scholarships and funds for other education programmes, they have.
