Dear Mr. Hansen:

Thank you for your comments concerning net metering. I appreciate you taking the time to share your views on this important topic. At this time, APS has not filed an application to change the net metering rules. You may review all the filings in these dockets by checking the Commission's eDocket website for the above-referenced docket numbers on the Commission's website: <http://edocket.azcc.gov/edocket/>.

Thank you again for sharing your comments with my office.

Sincerely,

Robert L. Burns

Re: APS. Possible Reneging on Solar Credits

Dear Commissioner Burns:

On behalf of PORA members in Sun City West, where we lay claim to the second highest percentage of solar installations of any community, we now find ourselves morally shocked that APS would contemplate reneging on their commitment of meeting the established policy for our homeowners who installed solar panels on their homes. APS authored a scheme to lure innocent people into investing in solar panels with the guise that they could earn net meter credits in the process.

Our West Valley climate is one of the most perfect solar climates in Arizona, since utilities are blessed with approximately 320 days total of sunshine and zero investment cost, while consumers are cursed by four to five months of scorching heat that necessitates the nearly constant consumption of power, as the meter's compounding calculations click off the resounding revenues. When the utility industry advanced their "promised returns," certainly it was well calculated by their multi-talented engineers and agreed to by their top industry bosses who regularly top the scale of the highest salaried executives in the state. To date, I have not been aware of any of their miscalculations.

The only real thing that has changed is that the innocent folk who bought into the program in good faith and embedded solar panels in their homes, largely on the strength of utility executives promising them a prize, now find that prize turning into a snare. It just isn't right to lure people into a program and then suddenly open the trap door, causing them to fall into added costs rather than earning credits, as the program was sold.

Such a change would have devastating impact to Sun City West homeowners since they rang the bell loud and clear for solar savings by being among the highest responding community. It would be tragic injustice to retract the proffered credits, not only in a retirement community that demonstrated unusually good faith, but to thrash any area where they entered the program only to see it disappear to make the APS cash coffers swell even more!

Hopefully, the spirited integrity exhibited by our five commissioners on many occasions will prevail against this proposed rank injustice and preserve promotional integrity.

Sincerely,
