Dear Chairman Stump,

Some businesses and organizations may be concerned with the costs of implementing new energy efficient technologies or retrofitting current hardware. An important realization is that initial costs of replacing current technologies can be offset by rebate plans offered by APS. The initial costs of these technologies are offset and the new systems pay for themselves throughout their lifetime. Our business knows that by improving our energy efficiency we can see many benefits, including saving money on a consistent basis.

It is in the best interest of our state to have adopted a robust energy efficiency implementation plan for APS. Thank you for your leadership to make this happen, but please do not vote to waive any measure in the energy efficiency standard in the future.

Yours Truly,

Oscar Espinoza
