Subject: Taxing Solar is Bad for Arizona's Economy

Dear Utility Division,

Everyone has stated that the place to discuss the issue of levying charges on residential solar customers should be during established rate case hearings. Most knowledgeable economists have stated that utilities should be helping to subsidize solar and other distributed renewable energy systems and not penalizing them with extra fees. However, if APS and other utilities need a hearing to attempt to explain why, unlike leading utilities across the country, they cannot make good profits engaging with renewable energy, then that hearing should be at the next scheduled rate case...not before.

Past ACC commissioners understood the real value of encouraging renewable energy development in Arizona. It means more jobs and more profits for Arizona businesses. The ACC has a role to play in helping poorly managed utilities to move into the 21st Century. Are you that ACC?

Sincerely,

John Neville
